

Historic dust storm blows through Rock County, causes damage

By Lori Sorenson

Some weather experts called it a derecho, "a powerful windstorm extending more than 240 miles, with a line of quickly moving thunderstorms."

Others said it was a haboob, an Arabic word to describe "a severe thunderstorm with powerful winds that cause dust blackouts."

Regardless of its name, all eye-witness accounts were the same: A billowing wall of dust and debris rose from a blackened western sky, and damaging winds wreaked havoc on the ground.

It stretched for 500 miles from eastern Nebraska to northern Minnesota, barreling through Rock County around 5:15 traveling east at roughly 70 mph.

It downed trees, overturned vehicles and flattened buildings, scattering pieces of tin and shingles for miles across nearby tilled and planted fields.

And as quickly as it struck, it abruptly ended, with a smattering

"We need more space," Tony Schomacker said Monday morning. "It gives us more room to expand our offering of fabrics and sewing machines."

He said the Sewing Basket was getting crowded, and the Home Galleries is seeking space for more appliances and possibly a live kitchen for demonstrations.

Schomackers Home Galleries has operated in its Main and Cedar location (the former Luverne Style Shop) since the summer of 2016.

In November of 2020 the Schomackers purchased the nextdoor Sewing Basket business from Barb Bork, who retired after 40 vears.

Schomackers Home Galleries continued operating the Sewing Basket and integrated its products and services – including Husqvarna and Viking sewing machines - into the Schomackers' business offerings.

They opened a doorway in the adjoining wall to support both businesses' customer service.

Home Gallery sells namebrand mattresses, kitchen and laundry appliances and floor covering (plus installation).

Now, both businesses need more space, and the Schomackers have signed a lease with Curt and Marilyn Bloemendaal for the third open suite at Mall on Main.

"It will be good for all of us," Schomacker said. "Plus, it will help to make the Mall on Main more of a shopping destination."

Celebrating the Class of 2022

Workers with the city of Luverne and Missouri River Energy Services began hanging the 90 banners on utility poles along Main Street Luverne on Friday. Eighty-two banners depict members of the LHS Class of 2022, with eight of the banners welcoming passersby to the city. Above, Dakota Olson with MRES secures the bracket to the utility pole while city of Luverne's Nic Johnson operates the bucket truck.

The annual tradition of senior banners began in 2020 to help make graduation special for the seniors who missed so much that year of the pandemic. "We heard all the bad things come out of Covid. This is one of the good things," said Annie Opitz with Quality Printing where the banners were produced. "It is so exciting." A parent committee now organizes the banners each year with parents and/or sponsors paying for the printing costs. The banners will remain on display through the summer and will be removed this fall and given to students to keep. Commencement for the LHS seniors is at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 29, in the Cardinal Gym.

Last week the state's farmers spent 2.4 days in the field, according to the latest crop report.

Nick Overgaard was planting soybeans in Beaver Creek Monday night, finishing his 2022 planting in Rock County.

He said he took a chance in late April to begin putting seed in the ground, even though the cool weather conditions were not optimal for seed development.

"You take a risk — that's what farming is," Overgaard said.

The early start has paid off in getting seed into the ground, especially corn, before May 25. Odds of the corn plant reaching its full yield potential drop progressively

MPCA seeks volunteers to monitor local water

By Mavis Fodness

The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency is seeking volunteers to monitor the state's more than 12,000 lakes and 92,000 miles of streams for water quality.

These include several high priority sites in Rock County, and the agency is recruiting residents for its popular Volunteer Water Monitoring Program.

The volunteers measure water clarity at various locations along the Rock River and the creeks of Ash, Elk, Mound Champepadan and Sater's.

"This is a perfect opportunity for outdoor enthusiasts and those interested in helping protect our

"Through the Volunteer Water Monitoring Program, volunteers do a simple water clarity test in a body of water twice a month during the summer."

Ron Feucht of Hills monitors The Rez and the Rock River near County Road 1 in southern Rock County. Once a month he samples the Rock River near Edgerton.

Feucht is in his third year of volunteer water monitoring and said he enjoys the weekly outdoor activity.

Luverne grad is composer for Bill Holm tribute

By Lori Sorenson

Luverne native Martha Helen Schmidt has composed a setting of Minnesota poet Bill Holm's "Playing Haydn for the Angel of Death," a musical tribute to Holm that premieres Saturday in Minneapolis.

Schmidt, a composer and educator from Minneapolis, stopped in Luverne Monday ahead of Tuesday's preview performance at Southwest Minnesota State University in Marshall.

The production also features pianist Daniel Rieppel, who was Holm's good friend at SMSU, and singer Ryan Hugh Ross, a former student of Rieppel. They are all musicians and authors, as was Holm. "Bill was a fine musician, and you will hear excerpts of his Boxelder Bug variations for piano at the concert," Schmidt said.

"It's kind of neat that we all have this southwest Minnesota connection," Schmidt said. "We're really excited. It's a big piece for us."

Her composition provides a 15-verse musical setting of Holm's epic poem entitled "Playing Haydn for the Angel of Death."

The world premiere will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 21, at the Open Book Literary Arts Center in the Target Performance Hall on Washington Avenue in Minneapolis.

Schmidt, daughter of Howard and Donna

Schmidt, grew up east of Luverne and graduated with the LHS class of 1975. She learned piano and musical appreciation from her mother, who played organ for Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Luverne.

"She and I were a great team," Schmidt recalled. "I played flute and sang, and she accompanied on the piano. We debuted at the Methodist Church when I was in sixth grade."

She went on to earn a master's degree in music and studied in France with world renown teacher Nadia Boulanger.

She's had five choral octavos published and her choral works have been performed by national college ensembles. She collaborated with National Geographic photographer Jim Brandenburg, also a Luverne native, on "Earth Teach Me," a choral work based on a Native American Ute poem illustrated by Brandenburg's photos.

In another Luverne connection, in 2016 Schmidt wrote an Art Song called, "Lonely," based on the poetry of poet Freya Manfred, daughter of the late Frederick Manfred, Luverne.

While in Luverne this week, she stopped at local attractions and visited the grave sites of her parents, Howard and Donna Schmidt, and grandparents, Art and Helen Schmidt and Dena and Louis Gilbertson.

Sixth grade now part of H-BC's middle school model

By Mavis Fodness

Big changes await students entering sixth grade at Hills-Beaver Creek High School this fall.

School board members supported the administrators' recommendation to move to an education structure where students will now follow an eightperiod day with electives. "It seems like a big thing," said board member Tim Bosch at the May 9 meeting. "It's just a few more teachers with more responsibility on them (students) to get to the right place." High School Principal Andrew Kellenberger explained their new schedule, which will use bells to signify the move to a different classroom, something they didn't experience at the elementary school.

"I think it (the middle thing like this," Heitkamp told the Times. "There was probably nothing that was more terrifyinglooking than that because you knew what was going to hit the city of Sioux Falls."

In Rock County and the tri-state area, there were numerous reports of semis and trucks blown over on roadways and property damage ranging from loose shingles and siding to toppled fences and structures.

A deputy noted a boat had landed in a field.

In Hills, neighbors helped each other clean up trees and branches after the storm. Brian Fick was among several property owners with tree damage, but he said he's grateful the fallen limb missed his house.

East of Hills near Steen, livestock producer Matt Boeve lost a cattle shed in the storm and was rounding up an escaped steer after the dust settled.

"It's not a big loss," he said about the collapsed structure, "but if I'm going to get rid of a building, I'd rather not do it this emergency declaration to the state Friday in anticipation of possible storm damage from the Thursday afternoon and evening events.

Commissioners rescinded the declaration at their Tuesday morning meeting. Initial damage assessments from the small cities commission chairman Jody Reisch. "We all saw the sky that night."

Some public damage in the county was limited to the southern half.

The Rock County Rural Water System main pumping station received roof damage, and Magnolia Township's equipment maintenance shed in Magnolia was flattened, snagging a powerline on the way down. Insurance is expected to pay for the repairs. Oldre noted that local fire departments were busy helping motorists and, in the case of Magnolia, keeping the public away from the downed powerline.

Previously the sixth grade was a self-contained classroom with a typical elementary classroom schedule.

When the district moved the sixth grade from the elementary school in Beaver Creek to the high school in Hills seven years ago, it remained as a self-contained classroom with one teacher responsible for all lesson subjects.

This fall the sixthgraders' schedules will include an eight-period day where they'll move to a different classroom each hour. They will participate in various electives.

The seventh- and eighth-grade students in the building already operate under the middle school model.

Moving the sixthgraders to a similar schedule made cohesive sense, according to discussion at the May 9 meeting.

"I think it's better for them because they are the only class that doesn't do it," said board member Harley Fransman.

To assist with the upcoming transition, H-BC's current fifth-grade students visited the high school recently. The current sixth-grade students provided tours and introduced the younger students to the features in the high school building. school model) will be a good thing," he said.

The sixth-grade classrooms will be located near each other in the high school building's north side.

Kellenberger said the fifth-graders' biggest fears involve getting lost within the building and finding the right classroom.

These are similar fears the sixth-grade students experienced entering the seventh grade and the current middle school model.

However, within a week, students became familiar and comfortable with the new schedule.

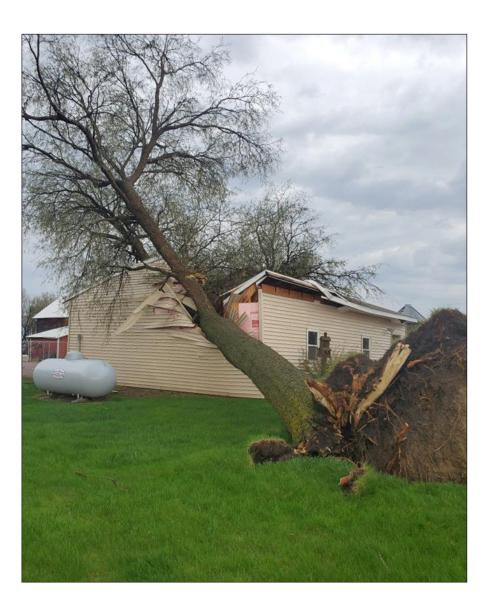

In other business, the board:

•supported adding two minutes to the 2022-23 school day to allow more fluent student transitioning during the day. The high school day will be from 8 a.m. to 3:07 p.m. and the elementary will be from 8:15 a.m. to 3:17 p.m.

"A lot of First Responders were out there in the middle of it and they did a great job," he said.

Kanaranzi storm May 11

On Wednesday night, another severe thunderstorm clipped the southern part of Rock County damaging property in Kanaranzi.

A detached garage at the home of Meranda and John Kramer was destroyed when a large tree fell on it.

According to Meranda's mother, Missy Fick, the vehicles inside received minor damage, but everything else inside was totaled. The garage will need to be torn down.

She said when Mike Davis came out to remove the tree, he remarked that it appeared to have been a tornado. "He said it was a hard tree with a good root system," said Fick, who lived at the property for 25 years before her daughter and husband moved there.

What to do for a shy person on her birthday?

My mom is quiet, reserved and a bit on the shy side. Lots of folks like and gatherings and spectacles. Mom doesn't. Which is why it was a bit of a challenge to throw her a proper 80th birthday party.

Her idea of a good time is reading a book in her sunroom or maybe mowing the lawn.

So, we decided to have several smaller gatherings. The first was a breakfast tea party at my sister Sarah's house with all the grandchildren and great-grandchildren age 7 and younger.

There were 10 of them. The party's highlight was a handmade card from Kingston, 7, which read, "Grandma, I would never see you if you weren't alive." Making sure he was out of the room, Mom laughed until she cried.

This party also included three baby ducks and a swimming pool, which delighted the guests immensely.

Lunch was to be a women's lunch with daughters and granddaughters while "the dads" watched the youngsters at a park. A lastminute realization that the lunch venue closed at noon resulted in near disaster. But two granddaughters, ages 34 and 28, rose to the challenge and in less than two hours created a delicious and beautiful lunch which was enjoyed by a dozen women under the gazebo in the Sanford Healing Garden. It turned out to be the perfect setting. The afternoon was spent playing corn hole with one son, six grandsons and one grandson-in-law at my brother Mike's house. The highlight of this party was creating a drone photo of Grandma standing in the giant "80" pattern her grandson Jordan mowed on the lawn for the occasion.

A final hurrah was The Big Party at my sister Lori's house, where the entire group of 34 descendants gathered for burgers on the grill, a salad bar and, of course, birthday cake.

My sister placed no limit on the amount of purple decorations that can be arranged in one garage. It was spectacular.

In the middle of all of this commotion sat my mom. Quiet as usual. She squeezed little ones as they jumped onto and off her lap. She smiled when we sang "Happy Birthday," looking relieved when the song was over.

And then she served 33 slices of birthday cake to her husband and kids and grandkids and great-grandkids without really saying a whole lot.

May is Older Americans Month

Support the ones who are supporting our seniors

GUEST EDITORIAL

By Linda Wenzel, A.C.E. of SW MN

For many caregivers, stress is a constant companion. One effective way to reduce caregiver stress and reduce burnout is to write in a journal. Getting your thoughts down on paper and out of your head is therapeutic. Studies have found that journaling improves health and wellbeing.

Chronic stress is devastating on your physical and mental health. Take a few minutes out of your busy day and try to write down your thoughts.

Some suggestions you could do to help you stay as healthy as possible while you care for your older adult are as follows:

•Keep a gratitude list as it helps shift your perspective and see that the world is not negative all the time. Make a list of things you are grateful for every day and keep adding to the list. When you are feeling negative or discouraged, read through your list to get a dose of positivity.

•Track your accomplishments, as caregiving involves many thankless tasks and exhausting battles. When you are feeling down, review that list to remind yourself of the things you have achieved.

•Give yourself wise advice by writing the struggle down using the third person. By doing this, you can distance yourself from what is happening and focus on the facts. This changes your perspective and helps you to reach an objective solution.

•When you are in a negative mood, it can be difficult to remember how to get out of it. Make a list of things that give you joy, activities that relax you, or music that boosts your mood. When you are feeling down, take out that list and do one of those things that bring you joy.

•Spend more time in nature. This is one of the best ways to refresh your senses and relax your mind. If you are not able to be outside on a regular basis, write about spending time in one of your favorite outdoor locations. Describe your surroundings, the landscape, and how it makes you feel, and then imagine that you are there.

A.C.E. of SW MN offers caregiver respite to relieve caregivers for a short period of time to run errands, socialize or just step away to get a break.

We also have a caregiver support group that meets the fourth Tuesday of every month. It is a safe place for caregivers to meet and develop a mutual support system. Please call 507-283-5064 for more information.

As we celebrate Older Americans month, please remember to support these amazing folks who have given so much to our communities.

Because my mom is quiet, reserved and a little on the shy side.

Happy 80th birthday, Mom. We love you.

Names for children come from various sources (like TV) with some more popular than others

So what's in a name? The name parents pick to bless, or in some cases curse, their new baby with can be a daunting task.

As you may know, my name is Rick, but that is not my legal name. I have no problem with Rick. After 60-plus years, it kind of grows on you.

My legal name is where the curse part comes into play. I have even checked into changing my legal name to Rick. After considering the expense and hurdles one has to jump through to change their legal name, I decided to stick with the one Mom and Dad supposedly blessed me with. The name parents choose for the children may be in honor of a family member or a tribute to their family heritage.

When I think back to how Mary and I came up with names, I draw a blank. Our firstborn is Nathan, but I'm not sure where that one came from. Second born is Emily. Again, I have no clue as to why. And the third Peterson child was named Jenna. I think that was the name of one of the characters on the popular TV show, "Dallas," at the time. So why all this name stuff? Well, because the Social Security Administration released the 2021 list of the most popular boys' and girls' names that Minnesota parents chose to name their babies last year.

In the interest of gender fairness, I flipped a coin to see which gender I list first, and the girls won the coin flip.

Top five girls' names are:

- # 1 Charlotte
- # 2 Olivia
- # 3 Evelyn
- # 4 Emma
- # 5 Nora

For the boys, the top five names are:

- # 1 Oliver
- # 2 Henry
- # 3 Theodore
- # 4 Liam
- # 5 Owen

The Social Security Administration began compiling the baby name lists in 1997, with names dating back to 1880.

At the time of a child's birth, parents supply the name to the agency when applying for a child's Social Security card, so the agency has become America's database for the most popular baby names.

Beaver Creek elevator gone, new office and scale coming soon

By Lori Sorenson

There is an empty lot in Beaver Creek where the 125-foot-tall wooden grain elevator once stood.

Demolition crews have been chipping away at the iconic landmark for the past several weeks, and construction will start soon on a new commodities office and truck scale being built in its place.

"Everything is in good shape, and we are still on schedule to be operational for harvest," said New Vision Cooperative CEO Matt Ashton. "Everyone is excited to see the finished product."

The elevator hadn't been used for active grain storage for over a decade (only for its office and scale) and was taken down for safety and efficiency reasons, Ashton said earlier this year.

"We want to reinvest in Beaver Creek to serve our customers longterm," Ashton said. "It's important to upgrade that facility to help our membership there."

The new 16-by-24-foot building will have an office, bathroom and utility room, plus a break room for customers and employees.

The new 11-by-75-foot inground truck scale will be easier for customers to access with grain.

The office and scale estimated to cost $400,000, joins the three existing bins (built 15 to 20 years ago) with a total grain storage capacity of 1.1 million bushels.

Ashton said the new technology at the bins will allow one person to run the three bins – the pits, legs and conveyer, and there's a grain probe at the scale to improve efficiencies.

The previous grain sampling process involved a coffee can scoop from the pit that's tested for weight, moisture and quality.

If there's spoiled grain, it was discovered as the grain went into the bin, too late to isolate it.

Ashton said New Vision in Beaver Creek typically accommodates 50,000 to 70,000 bushels of grain per day during harvest.

"We hope with the new scale we'll be able to see more traffic," Ashton said. "We want to be able to better serve our customers."

By the end of March, much of the former grain elevator had been reduced to a pile of rubbish. It was completely gone a month later.

A crane and wrecking ball moved on site in March and slowly started the demolition process that wrapped up last week. Some stored soybeans at the base were not salvageable due to demolition debris.

According to local historians, the town's original elevator burned down in 1970 and was replaced by the one that was just taken down.

New Vision to remove 1980s grain bins in Hills

Meanwhile, New Vision also took down four steel grain bins in Hills.

Ashton said the bins, built in 1984 and 1989, were last used for the 2020 harvest.

"It was labor intensive - took a lot of people to unload and clean the bins each year," he said.

"They needed repairs, and the recommendation was to close that part of our business in Hills.

The four steel bins had a combined grain storage capacity of 600,000 bushels.

All grain now runs through the New Vision terminal north of Hills. It has a 5-million-bushel capacity and accepts grain year-round.

The bin site property in Hills will be planted to grass and eventually offered for sale.

It has been our privilege to serve Luverne and the surrounding communities for five years and we look forward to many more. Thank you to all our loyal customers and friends who have made this possible. Please join us for this customer appreciation and celebration.

When prairie chickens were so numerous in this section of the country that one could ride along in a wagon and shoot them was recalled this week by William Heckt, Luverne. The birds found the unbroken prairie an ideal place for nesting and raising their young, but as the county became more densely populated, and more and more land was placed under cultivation, the number of prairie chickens gradually decreased until now there are only a few scattered flocks that spend the winters in corn fields here.

Mr. Heckt has been a resident of the United States since 1880, when he came here from Germany. He was born Aug. 5, 1865 in Holstein, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joachim Heckt. At 18 years of age, she graduated from the University of Minnesota at Mankato with a teaching degree. She continued her education and certification from the University of Minnesota at Morris. She began her teaching career in Rock County at a country school and also taught in Hardwick, Beaver Creek and Luverne.

On June 12, 1946, Lucille married Emmett Gangestad at St. John Lutheran Church in Luverne. The couple settled on a farm in Vienna Township near Luverne. Here they raised their three children. Nick Overgaard finishes planting soybeans Monday night in Beaver Creek before rains moved into the area again Tuesday morning. Rain and cold soil temperatures this spring have delayed area farmers from getting into the fields for almost a month, putting this year's planting timeframe of getting corn and soybeans into the ground behind the five-year average.

In his travels as district representative for Wyffels Hybrids, Overgaard noted field conditions remain wet, with more rain in the forecast.

According to the state's latest crop progress and condition report, the rains have removed drought conditions from the area. Subsoil moisture is rated at 91 percent adequate to surplus with only 9 percent short or very short across the state.

Topsoil moisture is at 99 percent adequate to surplus with only 1 percent rated as short.

The rains have delayed progress in the fields state-wide.

Corn planting across the state is at 35 percent complete as of Sunday. Last year farmers were 94 percent complete, and the fiveyear average is 72 percent complete.

Soybean planting is 11 percent complete, compared to 85 percent last year and the five-year average of 47 percent.

tion following the Franco – Prussian war, and times were difficult, especially for a man with a large family. Another factor which no doubt had some bearing on his father's decision was Mr. Heckt's older brother, who was already living in this country. He told of America's wealth and agricultural future, and this, Mr. Heckt believes, had its influence on his father.

They settled in Tama county, Ia. near the village of Dysart, where the elder Mr. Heckt bought an 80 acrefarm. Although thought of as a comparatively small acreage in this country, this was a big farm for the Heckt family, who came from a country where land was tarmed only in very small tracts. Farming was different here too, than it was in Holstein, Mr. Heckt recalls. There all the farmers lived in villages, and tilled the land adjoining the village. Mr. Heckt lived at home until he was 21, and he then went to Lyon county to obtain employment. He worked as a hired hand for several years for a salary of $20 a month. He came to Rock county in 1889 and worked on a farm that summer. On Dec. 24 of that year, he married Mollie Hemme at Luverne. In 1891, the couple began farming in Springwater township. From there, they moved to Rose Dell township which was their home for nine years. In 1905, they moved to the village of Hardwick where Mr. Hemme was engaged in the retail mercantile business.

Three years of business life was as much as he wanted, however, and he moved back to a farm in Denver township.

Here the Heckt family lived until retiring and moving to Luverne in 1919. Farming today in many ways is different from what it was when he came to Rock county, Mr. Hemme states, but in one way, it's just the same. You still have to plant the seed and harvest your crops, he philosophizes, no matterhow mechanized your farming has become. the common rather than the uncommon thing when he first came to Rock county. One year, he set up over 100 stacks, 80 of which stood through the winter because he was unable to get a threshing crew to finish them in the fall. Although the butts were wet, the grain in the upper five sixths of the stacks were dry and in excellent condition.

The driest years he experienced was during 1894 and 1911. In 1894, he recalls, there was a killing frost in May, and no rain fell after that time. Wheat sown on corn stalk ground produced some grain, but that sown on plowing was worthless. He harvested his biggest crop the year following, in 1895.

Ag. Fun for Everyone

H-BC student develops activity book aimed at educating children about agriculture

By Mavis Fodness

A passion for agriculture led Hills-Beaver Creek High School senior Samantha "Sam" Moser to develop a business to educate elementary-aged children about life on a farm.

Her business, Farm to Fork Education, features a 70-page children's activity book titled "Ag. Fun for Everyone" for 5to 10-year-olds.

"The book covers the proper practices and knowledge of animal husbandry and agricultural land management," Moser said.

"It includes information and activities about beef, dairy, swine, sheep and poultry, along with corn, soybeans and what a farmer does in a day."

Moser drew on her own experiences growing up on the family farm between Hills and Beaver Creek. She's active in the family's beef and swine operations and knows firsthand what it takes to raise a protein source for consumers.

The daughter of Stuart and Karin Moser was the 2021 Rock-Nobles Cattlemen's beef ambassador.

In her ambassador role she shared her love and excitement for the beef industry with the public and expanded her animal knowledge beyond her involvement in FFA and 4-H.

This fall Moser was accepted into the CEO (Creating Entrepreneurial Opportunities) program for her senior year. The program provides interested students at H-BC, Luverne, Adrian, Pipestone and Edgerton with the opportunity to start their own businesses.

Moser said she struggled to determine what type of business she should create. As beef ambassador, she liked talking with the public but didn't think the development of an ag public speaking business would be profitable.

"Who would pay to listen to a 17-yearold?" she said.

However, children listen well to a teenager with an age-specific activity book.

Moser designed each page to depict the everyday happenings on the family farm.

She said she focused on children "who may not have the common knowledge that many growing up on the family farm possess."

Many of the activities Moser designed by using Super Teachers Worksheets on the internet.

Through the connections she's gained through the CEO program, Moser had the activity pages published in a soft-cover 8.5-by-11-inch book.

"After going through the entire activity book, I hope children will walk away with more knowledge, a better understanding and appreciation for the agriculture industry," she said.

Moser entered the Midland Institute's CEO pitch contest, where her business promotion video earned an honorable mention for its excellence.

She sells the activity books for $13, with discounts for bulk orders over 25 books. The books can be ordered by email at farmtoforkedu@gmail.com or direct message through Instagram @ farmtoforkedu.

Moser's project is gaining in popularity as she markets her business.

Alyssa Krull is among students at Hills-Beaver Creek Elementary School in Beaver Creek who completed the maze, "Help the Cow on its Way to the Pasture," in Samantha Moser's "Ag. Fun for Everyone" activity book.

At the April 12 Ag Day event at Hills-Beaver Creek Elementary School, 150 of Moser's activity books were distributed.

"There are area 4-H programs and a few elementary schools that have purchased the book for use," she said. "They make up over half my sales; the rest have been sold to individuals."

The CEO experience and start of her business has Moser rethinking a nursing career after graduating this May.

"It has been through the creation of this book and starting my business that I realized my true passion is agriculture," she said. "This has led me to pursue a degree in animal science (with an industry relations specialization) and agriculture communications at South Dakota State University."

Local CEO program facilitator Katie Baustian said Moser has taken her business to a professional level, once she tapped into her passion for agriculture.

"Sam is an impressive young person who is willing to work to reach her full potential and make her business a success," Baustian said.

Moser and the 16 other CEO students debuted their businesses at the annual CEO Trade Show on May 18 in Pipestone.

LHS golf competes in Big South championship

Boys' team takes fourth place, girls finish ninth

By John Sichmeller For the Star Herald

The Luverne boys' and girls' golf teams competed in the Big South Conference championship meet on Monday, May 16, at the Dacotah Ridge Golf Club in Morton.

In the boys' meet, the St. Peter Saints came out on top with a team score of 324. The Cardinals shot a team score of 348 to finish in fourth place out of the 12 teams in the conference.

The Cardinals were led by sophomore Henry Hartquist, who shot an 80, which placed him in a tie for fourth place out of 71 golfers at the meet.

Junior Brady Bork tied for ninth individually with a score of 85, and LHS sophomore Owen Sudenga finished in 15th place after a round of 87. Freshman Levi Gonnerman also contributed to the team score with a round of 96.

Also competing for Luverne were Colin Schoenman (96) and Tyler Arends (98).

The LHS girls' team finished with a team score of 432 to place ninth out of 10 teams at the meet. The Cardinals from Redwood Valley were the overall meet champion with a team score of 354.

Luverne was led by junior Lauren Hansen, who shot a 104. Senior Morgan Gonnerman trailed Hansen by one stroke at 105. Junior Jocelynn Mann shot a 111 and senior Cheyenne Schutz scored 112 to contribute to the team score for the Cardinals.

Also competing for Luverne were Perceyis Trierweiler (126) and Mallory Nelson (134).

The meet was the culmination of four conference meets for the boys' and girls' golf teams. Each meet's results awarded team and individual points to determine final standings and All-Conference award winners.

Thanks to his stellar play all season, Hartquist came out on top of the individual boys' standings and took home first place overall in conference play.

"Henry had an awesome season and to be the top player in the entire conference at the end of the year is a tremendous accomplishment," said LHS boys' coach John Sichmeller.

Hartquist came into last year's conference championship with a chance to earn first place overall, but a poor final round kept him from capturing the top individual award.

"Austin was our first boy to break 90 this season. Tess continued to play well and was medalist again. She currently is in first place individually in the Red Rock Conference."

With the final conference meet next Tuesday, he said his golfers are looking to continue their improved play.

The boys and girls both were scheduled to travel to Worthington Tuesday for the final day of conference play.

Cardinals take on Rebels in season's final regular game Tuesday

By Jason Berghorst for the Star Herald

The Luverne Cardinal baseball team split a very unique doubleheader in Jackson Thursday, May 12, before coasting to an easy victory over Adrian at home Monday.

LHS, 11-6 after Monday's game, was scheduled to host Worthington on Tuesday after this edition of the Star Herald went to press.

The Cardinals are then scheduled to play at Murray County Central in Slayton on Tuesday in their final regular season game.

"We look to have a strong finish to the regular season as we prepare for postseason play," said Luverne head coach Phil Paquette.

Luverne set the offensive pace for the game early when the Cards scored all five of their runs in the first two innings of a 5-3 victory over the Jackson County Central Huskies in the first game of a doubleheader on the road Thursday.

The Cardinals set the offensive pace early when Casey Sehr and Connor Connell hit back-to-back solo home runs in the top of the first inning.

After JCC scored on a run in the bottom of the first, LHS scored three more in the second stanza when Carter Sehr, Braydon Ripka and Casey Sehr all had RBI hits that scored Zach DeBoer, Carter Sehr and Austin Ossefoort, who was courtesy running for Ripka.

Casey Sehr pitched the final one-third inning. LHS 23000005 JCC 10100103

The second game of the Thursday night doubleheader in Jackson was a memorable one.

Due to a series of storms that rolled through the area, the game that began at 6:10 p.m. didn't end until nearly 11 p.m. as a result of two extended delays.

When the game did finally conclude, Jackson County Central defeated Luverne 18-5.

"I think anytime you have three delays in a baseball game, it's tough to stay physically and mentally ready to play," said Paquette. "Jackson did a great job of competing through those delays while we lost our focus and intensity as the night went on."

Kaden Anderson pitched the first 12/3innings for Luverne. He allowed two hits and four runs while striking out one and walking one. Casey Sehr pitched in relief and threw 2 2/3 innings. He gave up four hits, four runs and struck out seven JCC batters.

Jacob Stroh was on the mound next for 1 2/3 innings. He gave up six runs on three hits and struck out four and walked three. Zach DeBoer threw the final inning, giving up four hits and four runs.

After playing in a game that took nearly five hours of clock time to complete due to weather interruptions Thursday, the Cardinals didn't take long to defeat the Adrian Dragons at Redbird Field Monday.

LHS scored 17 runs in the first four innings to cause the ten-run rule to be in place after Adrian didn't score in the top of the fifth inning. The Cardinals won 17-0.

Casey Sehr led the impressive offensive effort, going four-for-four and scoring four runs for LHS. His younger brother, Carter, was three-for-three, scoring one run and batting in two more.

Jacob Stroh and Riley Sneller both were twofor-two at the plate. Stroh scored three runs and had two RBIs. Sneller tallied six RBIs, three of which came from a bases-loaded double that nearly cleared the fence.

Zach DeBoer was the winning pitcher for Luverne. He was on the mound for three innings, giving up only two hits and striking out four Dragon batters.

Cardinals' track teams win at conference meet

Sandbulte breaks LHS 200 record

By Blaine Radtke For the Star Herald

Luverne High School boys' and girls' track teams took home conference titles at the little-school Big South Conference competition Saturday, May 14, in Windom.

The Cardinal girls won over second-place Jackson County Central 215.5 to 145. The LHS boys won over Redwood Valley 132 to 115.5.

Seven schools constitute the little school portion of the conference (St. James, Blue Earth Area, Windom, Redwood Valley, Pipestone Area, Jackson County Central and Luverne).

It was a beautiful day which provided for some top-notch performances.

To be an All-Conference selection, athletes need to finish in the Top 3 individually or be on a Top 2 finishing relay team.

Coach Janiszeski explained how he chooses to stack the team for the conference meet just ahead of True Team and section meets, which are very important meets. "We want to always try and win the conference meet but also try not to overload our athletes in doing so," he said.

Jocelyn and Jadyn Hart finished first (35-07) and second (35-05) respectively in the shot put. They traded spots in the discus with Jadyn first at 120-09 and Jocelyn second at 104-05.

Mia Wenzel was first in the high jump at 5-0 and Elizabeth Wagner second at 4-10. Mia also finished second in the 100-meter dash (13.65) and was on the first place 4-by-100-meter relay ship running 44.61, just .19 hundredths off the school record time.

Eli Radtke took his first jump at 11-8 and won the pole vault. He went straight for a personal best jump of 13-09. He just missed brushing the bar on his way down on his second attempt.

Noah Mehlhaff was third in the pole vault with a (PR) jump of 11-02.

Ryan Fick was first in the 800-meter-run with a (PR) of 2:07.20. Camden Janiszeski won the 1,600-meter-run at 4:34.11. Camden teamed up with Lucky Dara, Zachary Terrio and Sandbulte for a first place finish (3:38.48) in the 4-by-400-meter relay.

Owen Janiszeski won the 3,200-meter run 10:04.94. He was also on the third place 4-by-800-meter relay (9:30.10) with Sage Viessman, Leif Ingebretson and Kaleb Hemme.

Jordan Friedrichsen won the shot put $45-02 \frac{1}{2}$ and took home third in the discus (113-10). Gavin De-Beer was third in the high jump (5-10).

Both teams have one more meet in Worthington prior to getting on the track at Stillwater May 21 for the state True Team meet.

Here's what not to do at the boat landing

It could actually be an unpaid Minnesota holiday if you didn't know better. There are lots of days on the calendar that Minnesotans look forward to, but they don't hold a candle to the Minnesota Fishing Opener.

As the time wound down ahead of the big day, anglers in garages everywhere got ready to holler "Start your engines," like a NASCAR race.

I really used to be one of those die-hard anglers who would do things I won't even consider today. I was on the water at midnight in both Minnesota and Iowa for one of the many walleye fishing tournaments held over opening weekend.

I even finished third in the Great Walleye Weekend on Big Spirit Lake in Iowa about a lifetime ago.

I once unloaded my boat on the border waters of Big Stone Lake after we shoveled about five inches of snow out of it.

I still like to fish and purchased a new kicker motor for my old Alumacraft Trophy 17 this spring. It was the only 9.9 horsepower motor made by Yamaha that I could find in about five states.

One of my favorite fishing opener pastimes, assuming the weather is good, is to sit on a lawn chair at a busy boat landing and watch the circus unfold.

I have seen just about every folly and mistake you can imagine.

There is the new rule in Minnesota that you cannot trailer your boat with the boat's drain plug in it. This is to ensure you are not transporting water from one lake to another - to slow the spread of invasive aquatic species of both animals and vegetation in live wells, boat hulls, etc.

Forgetting to put the plug back in before launching into the lake is a common mistake, and now it's very common. Sooner or later you will see the boat heading to shore to bail out the boat or wait until the bilge pump catches up.

I have seen boat trailers with their wheels half down on the dock.

Others will forget to remove the rear trailer tie-downs, and the wind will blow their boat parallel to shore. There is no way to pull it out now without a good cold water wading seminar.

Probably the best one I can remember was an older guy landing his small fishing boat, and it took him 10 minutes to crank the boat up onto the trailer in 15-second increments of physical exertion. After the line of other boaters got impatient, he got in the truck and slowly drove out of the ramp, unaware that his boat winch was not secure.

As he drove off slowly, boat - in slow motion - gently slid off the trailer onto the ground. When the winch ran out of rope, the boat dragged behind the truck on the ground with the motor leaving a plow furrow about four inches deep. Lots of folks were hollering to help him, but he paid no mind and drove out of the ramp and unto the street about 100 yards away. The boat cut the corner and missed a parked car by only a few inches.

He stopped to transfer his gear in the truck, and when he came to realize what had happened, the first thing he did was to look around to see if anyone had seen him.

Without flinching, he just started cranking on the hand winch, declining lots of offers to assist. About four rest breaks later, he had the boat on the trailer and was on his way.

I had another incident in a Canadian shield lake where a member of our party unloaded their boat in a river flowage and the motor would not start. My friend, the owner's son, asked him what was up, and the dad responded that it ran good last year when he put it away.

They drifted five miles before the other boat returned from a supplies trip to a distant cabin to tow them to home base. The engine never did run on that weeklong trip.

Enjoy your time angling on the lakes this summer, or grab a lawn chair at a busy boat ramp.

You might capture a video that goes viral if some unfortunate soul really steps up their unpreparedness game.

Do you love Jesus?

Jesus said, "If anyone loves me, he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our home with him. Whoever does not love me does not keep my word." (John 14:23-24).

What a humbling reminder from the lips of Jesus himself. Jesus' teaching here could not be clearer: If you love him, you will keep his word; if you do not love him, you will not keep his word. So, do vou love Jesus? Have you kept his word?

It is difficult for us Christians, who know we love Jesus, to turn and admit that we have not always kept his word. In an attempt to excuse ourselves, a question comes to our mind: What exactly is the word of Christ?

Some say the words of Christ we must keep are only those words in the scriptures that were actually spoken by Jesus. And so they grab their red-lettered Bible; they read the words in red and leave everything else up for grabs.

But there are two problems with that. First, even if we only look at the words in red, we still cannot follow them perfectly. And second, Jesus is God. All scripture was inspired by God. Thus, whether the words we read are in red or in black, written by St. Paul or St. James, or Moses, they make up the word of Jesus.

When we read the Bible carefully, we cannot help but conclude that we have failed to keep God's Word perfectly. We are sinners. When compared to the perfection which God requires, we know we deserve nothing but death in hell. We bring nothing to our defense for God on Judgment Day.

us and desires all people be saved. The penalty that we deserve for all of our failures to keep his word, the Father has put upon Jesus. Jesus willingly endured that punishment out of his love for us. For those who hope and believe in Jesus, God no longer sees you as sinners, but as his beloved sons and daughters.

We love Jesus, because he first loved us. Without the powerful working of God in our lives, we would still be lost in sin. Yes, our love for Jesus is weak, but where our loves fails, Jesus' love for us overcomes our weakness.

Isn't God amazing? He created the world in perfection, and when we messed it up, he sent us a Savior. Jesus came as our Savior, but we end up killing him! Yet through that death, God forgives us of all our sins.

So is there good news? Yes! Thanks be to God, he is not only the righteous judge, but he is our heavenly Father, too. He loves weak and we do not always love Jesus by keeping his word, God still loves us. He still forgives us when we come to him in repentance. He gives us his Holy Spirit to help us until he calls us home.

God is amazing! He demands perfection from us, and then he gives us that perfection he requires.
