Teachers, staff recall 1975 strike

Forty-year-old scrapbook detailing strike donated to Historical Society

By Mavis Fodness

Forty years ago this week, teachers in Luverne Public Schools went on strike as one of seven Minnesota school districts to do so in 1975.

Their action canceled classes from Dec. 12 to Dec. 19, giving students and non-union staff a long Christmas break. Classes resumed Jan. 5, 1976.

A four-inch thick, three-ring binder titled "A Time Remembered," chronicles events before and after the first and only teachers' strike conducted in the Luverne district.

Retired teacher Jerry Jensen recently gave the binder to the Rock County Historical Society archives. "I was the last one to retire that was in the strike," he said.

Jensen is one 87 teachers who participated in the teachers' strike of 1975. He was also one of the 70 percent of those who participated who continued to make Luverne their home decades after the strike's settlement.

Another teacher who retired from Luverne Public Schools was Gordon Gits, who was responsible for the "A TimeRemembered"binder's creation.

Gits was a high school English teacher and served as the communications chairman for the Luverne Education Association during the strike. Gits died in 2012.

The strike bonded those involved to stay in the Luverne community after its conclusion.

'One fringe benefit of that whole strike experience is that we became the most closely knit staff of any group of teachers to come through the system," recalled retired high school teacher Esther (Spease) Frakes.

They still meet, now as retirees, each fall.

Iensen joined the group in 2011. He was a third-year teacher in Luverne when he voted to strike effective at 8 a.m. Friday, Dec. 12.

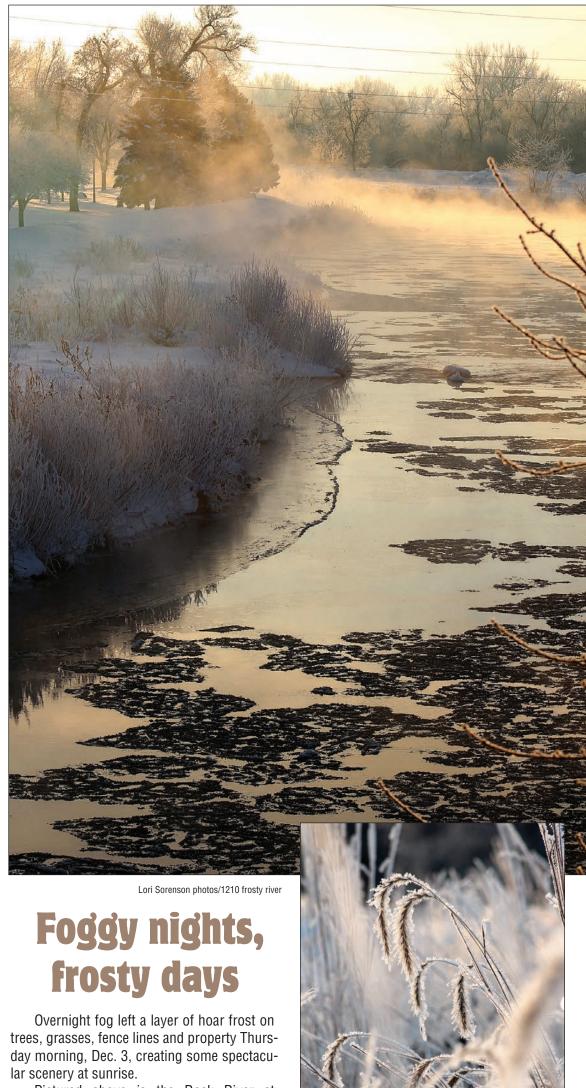

"It was cold," Jensen said of picketing in front of the high school in freezing temperatures.

Not on the picket line was teacher David Svingen, who served as negotiator for the Luverne Education Association and was advocating for eight additional items to be added to the master contract.

Among the items was a fixed workyear of 179 days and salary increases of 14.8 percent.

A master contract was a new document between school boards and teacher unions. The contract

Board tables sheriff's request for additional deputies

By Mavis Fodness

The decision to add up to two full-time deputies to the Rock County Sheriff's Office was put on hold until

At their Dec. 1 meeting, commissioners tabled any increases to the sheriff's office budget for 2016. The topic will be addressed again during budget talks for 2017.

In October Sheriff Evan Verbrugge asked for a $30,000 increase in next year's departmental budget.

The monies would have paid for the annual software and service of computers for the computer-aided dispatch (CAD) system yet to be installed in his department's squad cars.

Last week the sheriff's department received a one-time $30,000 grant from the state's Court Technology Fund Advisory Board.

For several years the commissioners have considered funding the installation and hardware for the CAD system.

The system allows deputies to access network information in the squad cars that traditionally is relayed by dispatch personnel to the officers. The CAD system would also allow officers to complete reports in the field.

The CAD system costs more than $200,000.

Verbrugge has also applied for an in-squad computer grant. The grants have become available in response to implementing the CAD system statewide by July 2016.

"The courts are getting away from paper," Verbrugge explained.

Commissioners along with Verbrugge supported adding additional sheriff deputies instead of the CAD for 2016.

The CAD system is seen as streamlining an officer's paperwork responsibilities; however, a more immediate concern is reducing overtime expenditures versus reducing an officer's workload.

"If you break it down — all shifts, 10 people — not counting Evan ... it's less than one call per shift on average," said County Administrator Kyle Oldre.

The Sheriff's Office averages 4,000 hours in overtime for a yearly average cost of $130,000. The extra hours primarily cover the shift openings created by vacations, sick leaves or officer trainings.

Part-time deputies have been used to cover shift openings, but

Hospice conducts Tree of Lights ceremony at Flag Park

By Mavis Fodness

More than 50 people participated in the Sanford Luverne Hospice 2015 Tree of Lights ceremony Thursday night, Dec. 3.

The ceremony at the corner of Highway 75 and Main Street was the first time in the event's 20-year history that it was conducted at the city of Luverne's new Flag Park.

"It was our largest group attending the lighting, and despite the chilly temps, there were many positive comments of the tree being on Main Street," said organizer Helen Saum. "Overall we felt it was very successful."

Standing around a 14-foot balsamfir in the 19-degree temperatures, participants listened as 330 names of loved ones were read as the tree was lit.

The tree was decorated with colored lights in remembrance of or to honor loved ones, living or deceased. The Tree of Lights is a fundraiser for Sanford's hospice program.

Similar tree-lighting ceremonies were conducted indoors in Edgerton with 66 names read and in Adrian with 113 names.

The last ceremony will be at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13, at Tuff Village in Hills.

About 50 people gather around the evergreen tree Thursday evening for the 2015 Tree of Lights ceremony hosted by Sanford Luverne Hospice.

provided uniformity among school districts.

"Master contracts came into being one negotiation maybe two before (1975)," Svingen said.

Contracts for the 1975-76 and 1976-77 school years went unsigned by both sides as the 1975-76 school year got underway.

Negotiations continued before and after the strike. The contract was formally signed on Jan. 10, 1976, retroactive to the beginning of the school

Erling Tofteland is a retired farmer living in Luverne. He chaired the School Board and the board's negotiating committee under the guidance of then superintendent Harvey Eitreim. Tofteland served another two terms on the school board after the strike. Eitreim retired from the district in 1978.

He said the School Board felt the pressure from the local teachers' union to increase salaries. The board had proposed a 2.3-percent increase.

"We were offering more than others in the area," Tofteland said. "It wasn't right to force other districts into giving a higher raise."

The School Board had 13 items to add or change on the master contract. Besides a salary increase, the board wanted to remove the clause about mutual consent between staff and administration on curriculum and staff assignments.

"We didn't think we needed people telling them (the administrators) how to do things," Tofteland said.

Negotiations reached an impasse on Dec. 8, 1975, when frustration and anger generated at the School Board meeting set the strike in motion.

Retired high school teacher Jim Sanden was LEA's president and he and his officer team began preparing for the strike months before it occurred.

"We knew negotiations weren'tgoingwell," he recalled

Prior to Luverne's teacher strike, only three other school districts had declared such an event. Those three declared strikes began one to three days before Luverne's.

The local union prepared for a long impasse. Materials in the "Time Remembered" binder showed picketing schedules planned through Jan. 6, 1976.

Six of the seven strikes lasted less than one week. The longest in Faribault lasted 27 days.

Uncertainty was also prevalent among the students who were confused and anxious about the impending

"Leading up to that day (Dec. 12, 1975) there were vibes," said then senior class president Ken Hup.

"The kids were afraid if this strike happened that classes would go into the summer."

A day before teachers left the classroom for the picket line, Hup said senior high students began walking out of class and gathering in the gymnasium, staging a strike of their own.

Hup said he talked students in going back to class as the student council sought answers on their behalf. "They

Landowner questions commissioners about ditch cleanup

By Mavis Fodness

Rock County landowners saw their topsoil wash into ditches with recent flooding, and those who want their dirt back will have to pay to have it moved, according to discussion at the Rock County Board meeting Dec. 1.

That's what commissioners told Henry Petersen of rural Hardwick after he addressed the board.

Heavy rains and subsequent flooding events in June 2014 and again this spring eroded an earthen berm that runs parallel to County Road 19, north of Petersen's farm in Denver Township 12.

The berm, before it was damaged, kept water in the east side ditch and out of the adjacent crop field.

County workers recently removed sediment from a portion of the west ditch along County Road 19. Petersen said he had been told he could not clean the east ditch.

"I want it so that the slow water, when we get that halfinch (of rain), runs down the ditch like it used to," he said.

After the 2014 flooding, commissioners decided that landowners who wanted to remove and keep the sediment from their ditches could do so.

But they must pay an authorized contractor to complete the work under the supervision of the county highway department.

The supervision is necessary to ensure that the integrity of ditches is maintained.

Because County Road 19, four miles northeast of Hardwick, dissects a major tributary to the Rock River, a state permit would be necessary before Petersen could clean the estimated 1,500 feet of ditch.

Commissioners authorized county personnel to assist Petersen in obtaining the necessary permit. The process could take up to a year to complete.

Once the permit is received, Petersen agreed to hire and pay a contractor to complete the sediment removal, estimated at $2,000. Petersen said he would use the sediment to repair the damaged berm.

Commissioners Ron Boyenga and Jody Reisch met with Sheriff Evan Verbrugge and recommended to the full board that Verbrugge receive a 3-percent salary increase each year for 2016, 2017 and 2018.

The commissioners unanimously supported the ineach year, which is what other county leaders, such as the engineer and administrator, received earlier this year.

Because the position of sheriff is elected and falls under civil servant guidelines, the person in that position does not undergo job performance evaluations like those of the county administrator and county engineer.

Currently a little over 24 million acres across the U.S. are enrolled in CRP, with more than 170,000 stream miles protected by riparian forests and grass buffers, enough to go around the world 7 times.

Participants establish long-term, resource-conserving plant species (grass or trees) on marginal agricultural land to control soil erosion, improve air and water quality and develop wildlife habitat.

In return, the Farm Service Agency provides participants with rental payments and cost-share assistance. Contract duration is between Violations are considered a misdemeanor, but civil penalties can also apply if the placement of snow creates a hazard such as slipper area, frozen rut or bump, which contributes to a motor vehicle or pedestrian accident. The civil liability can extend to both the property owner and the person who placed the snow.

Other hazards created by improper placement of snow on or near a public roadway include drainage problems, drifting, sight obstruction, and safe accessibility. Special attention should be made to keep crosswalks, intersections, entrances and exits clean and unobstructed.

For those who don't know, Father Tom has a knack for making people feel special. During announcements or in an occasional sermon, he will single out individuals by name, oftentimes to their surprise.

Sunday's sermon on St. Nicholas ended with Father Tom passing out oranges to the children in attendance. Something golden and from the earth were his reasons behind the choice of gift. He took his time, recognizing the children as they came forward, and being on the alert not to miss anyone.

Post-flood rehabilitation at Blue Mounds State Park offers no easy answers

A few weeks ago, I visited the Rock County Board of Commissioners to discuss the DNR's process for evaluating and deciding the future of the dam at Blue Mounds State Park, which was significantly damaged during the flood of June 2014.

Knowing our local communities have great interest in this issue, I wanted to share some of the key aspects of the DNR's decision-making process with members of the public.

Deciding next steps for the dam and lake is not simple and involves multiple considerations. Clearly the park and the lake are important to the local community and the region. And the dam is historically important.

But the county has changed dramatically since the 1930s. Recreation has changed. The environment has changed.

Three-quarters of a century ago Pond mussels, Topeka shiners and Plains topminnows were abundant. Today their numbers are limited.

Construction methods that were accepted in the '30s are not allowed today. Rebuilding the dam by current safety standards may keep it functional but compromise its historic value.

By Dennis Frederickson, Regional Director Minnesota Department of Natural Resources

fishing and just sitting by the lake are part of the park's outdoor heritage. So are free-flowing streams and clean water. The dams and lakes are significant, as is the federally endangered Topeka shiner fish.

DNR Commissioner Tom Landwehr bicycled with Lieutenant Governor Tina Smith from Luverne to the park during this summer's Prairie Pedal Bike Tour. They heard firsthand from local leaders and others about the importance of Blue Mounds State Park and the lake to the local economy and community.

And I want to emphasize that Blue Mounds is also a key part of the Minnesota State Park system and the DNR.

DNR has not yet made a decision on the future of the dam because we are still in the process of evaluating all of these factors. There are potential impacts at every level local, state and federal.

Federal Emergency

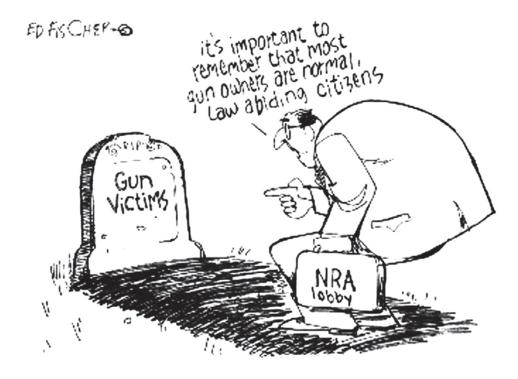

Management Agency (FEMA) will weigh in on DNR's decision. That also means other federal agencies will also have a say in the project.

Over the past year, we have completed engineering studies, analyzed historic resource issues, identified potential economic and recreational impacts, conducted biological surveys.

These efforts confirm the complexity of the decision in front of us, but also underscore the need to make a decision.

DNR is carefully considering the data and perspectives we have gathered. By late December we anticipate making our decision, which we will then communicate to both local government and FEMA.

I understand the importance of this decision and I intend to ensure that we listen carefully and provide timely information as we move through the remaining steps in this process.

Trip to McDonald's reveals 'Grandpa still has it'

A couple of weeks ago when my grandson was in town for some deer hunting, we went to McDonald's drive-up early on a Sunday morning.

We placed the order of one Mc-Muffin and two hash browns. Just the grandson was eating; I was along to finance the operation.

We pulled up to the pay window and the nice, friendly lady was, let's say, in the zip code range of my age. She very politely told me my total and I gave her a $5 bill. Instead of handing me a handful of change, she actually counted it out before handing it to me.

Before she could pass my change through the window, I told her to put the change in the donation slot.

We then pulled up to the window where we would get our order. Again, another very nice lady in my age range (give or take 10 years) greeted us at the window. She told us that they had just dropped the hash browns in the fryer and it would be about three minutes until they were done so they would be nice and hot.

After about a minute and a half, the lady came back to the window and told us the hash browns would be ready in a minute. She offered us a cup of coffee or a hot chocolate while we waited.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

By Rick Peterson, General Manager Tollefson Publishing

Carter had a Gatorade from home so I didn't think he wanted anything, but I accepted the coffee. I offered to pay for it but she said it was on the house. In no time at all we had Carter's order and we were

I thought Carter was oblivious to the great service we had just received because he was busy munching on his hot, crispy hash browns

I thought to myself, "I have to be sure to tell people about this wonderfully pleasant experience at our Golden Arches," (because I've taken the local fast food restaurant to task on another occasion for less than average service).

Carter and I spent the morning hunting before we headed back to the house, so he could return to Redwood Falls with his family.

As the family was gathered in the kitchen just before they were getting ready to leave, I remembered the McDonald's experience and blurted out, "Hey, I gotta tell you about McDonald's this morning."

Mywife, Mary, was quick to say, "Carter has already told us all about how those ladies at McDonald's were hitting on Grandpa."

I had no idea he was even paying attention to our trip through the drive-through, but somehow he translated pleasant, friendly service into Grandpa getting hit on, and for that I say, "Thank You McDonald's," because in my grandson's eyes Grandpa still has it.

Rep. Schomacker analyzes state budget forecast

Minnesota's economic experts have spoken, and they are projecting agreeable fiscal news for the state according to State Representative Joe Schomacker (R-Luverne). If the estimates hold, Minnesota could expect to see a surplus of $1.871 billion for the 2016-17 budget cycle.

"We're seeing a continued trend of positive economic forecasts, which is always good news," Schomacker said. "While national trends indicate overall changes in the economy in speed of growth, Minnesota's economic outlook remains solid."

Minnesota Management & Budget Office estimates that revenues will be $42.718 billion in Fiscal Year 2016-17, a $90 million increase over end of session estimates. Current law spending is forecast to be $41.656 billion in the current biennium, or $249 million lower than previous projections.

Diving a bit deeper into the numbers, estimated spending for human services is lowered by $416 million, while spending for E-12 and other areas has increased. Higher than expected general sales and corporate franchise taxes offset a lower income tax forecast. Among other taxes, the cigarette and tobacco tax shows the largest dollar amount change, an increase of $67 million.

Schomacker noted that a significant portion of the projected surplus about $665 million — will be sent to budget reserves and to make other state payments.

Under current law, 33 percent of any November forecast balance in the current biennium is to be allocated to the budget reserve until the recommended level of $2.032 billion for FY 2016-17 is reached. This forecast directs $594 million to the budget reserve, increasing it to $1.597 billion.

This means $1.2 billion is projected to be left for the Legislature to allocate.

"We still have 31/2 months before the legislature returns, and a lot can happen in that time," Schomacker said. "While it may be a bit premature to call out how the funds should be allocated, if the trend continues we should address issues that have been put on the back burner for too long, including tax relief."

Thone: Autumn 2015 likely among Top 10 warmest on record

By Troy Thone, Luverne volunteer weather recorder

Autumn 2015 will likely go down as one of the Top 10 warmest on record.

Comparing Sioux Falls' climatology records, the warmest autumn was in 1963 when temperatures averaged 53.87 degrees.

The Top 10 is rounded out with No. 10 coming in at 51.57 degrees set in 2005. Luverne's 2015 Autumn temperature average was 52.80 degrees, which easily makes its way into the history books.

This record was helped along by another "balmy" month where November highs climbed nearly 5 degrees above average and overnight lows soared over 7 degrees above average. Temperatures also hit an unusual 70 degrees on both the 3rd and 4th of November. That's 20 degrees above normal.

At the same time as the temperatures were soaring to record levels, precipitation amounts also were soaring past November normals.

Total precipitation recorded was nearly 3 1/2 inches and over 2 inches above normal, making for a pretty wet November.

While most of this precipitation was in the form of rainfall (given the warm temperatures), November snowfall amounts were not that shabby either.

A total of 14 inches of snow was recorded for the month, almost doubling the normal for

The Nov. 30-Dec. 1 storm accounted for the bulk of this snowfall when 8.8 inches fell. Calculating snowfall based on the calendar year, this still leaves us over 7 inches below normal due to a very snow-free February, March and April.

However, calculating the snowfall based on the season puts us ahead of the curve by over 5 inches.

The combination of warm temperatures with heavy snowfalls has created a meltfreeze-melt-refreeze pattern on sidewalks and other surfaces, making for treacherous walking and, occasionally, driving conditions.

In the end, Luverne ratified a 17-percent economic package through the Bureau of Mediation Services in a meeting in the Twin Cities.

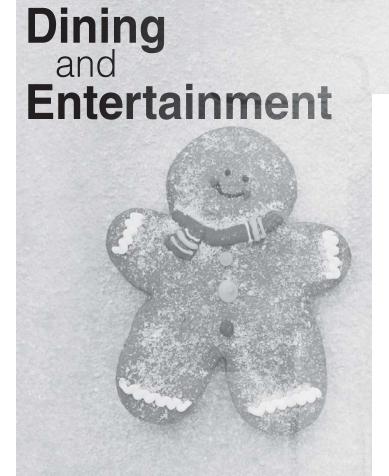

The master contract was also modified, lessening the mutual consent clause between administration and teachers. Current district business manager Marlene Mann is one of the last employees involved in administration 40 years ago. Mann was a secretary in the superintendent's office.

As business manager she is now a participant in the district's contract negotiations. The strike has given her a focus when attending the sessions.

"Iwould rather look forward (for what's best for the district) instead of dwelling in the past,'

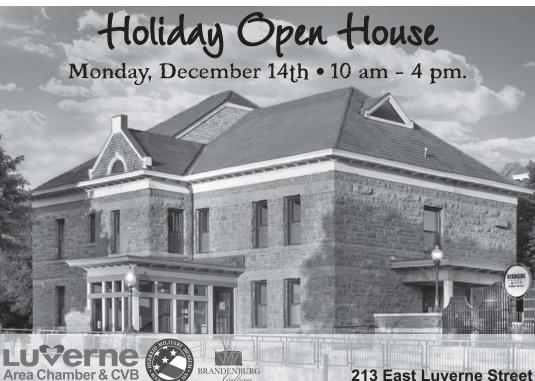

While the teachers' union kept a binder from the strike, the district did not. "We try to forget it," Mann said.

A Christmas tree in Pierre

Luverne woman fulfills wish to decorate a tree at South Dakota capitol

By Lori Sorenson

One hundred finely decorated evergreen trees fill the Capitol rotunda in Pierre, South Dakota, and a Luverne woman can take credit for one of them.

Lorraine Stoel, a native of the Okaton, South Dakota, area, was invited to decorate a tree in a theme of her choosing.

Stoel's Christmas tree theme is "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow — with Jack and Grace," in honor of her parents, Jack and Grace Roghair. "Appreciating lessons learned from yesteryear, enjoyed today and hopefully passed to future generations," is her tree's statement of purpose.

The theme at the Capitol this year is International Christmas. Stoel said she chose to focus on her Dutch heritage, and she decorated the tree with handcrafted quilted ornaments.

"It was a great experience," she said.

She has shared similar ornaments in a themed tree she has done at the Carnegie Cultural Center's Festival of Trees in Luverne.

Stoel said she's always wanted to be part of the Capitol tree decorating process, but didn't think it would be possible to participate.

"My brother was a big help in finding the right department to contact," she said.

"I thought it would be a big rigamarole and I'd be on a big long waiting list. ... They sent me forms to fill out and not long after that, I received notification that I had been chosen to do a tree."

Courtesy of Travel South Dakota website

There were guidelines she must follow in decorating her 7-foot tree. For example, the lights must be all white — not blinking — and the decorating material can't be promotional or selling a product.

According to the Capitol website, cities, businesses, nonprofit groups and other civic organizations apply throughout the year for a tree.

If selected, they spend the weekend before Thanksgiving busily stringing lights and tinsel and hanging handcrafted ornaments.

Stoel said she made it a family affair when she traveled to Pierre on Nov. 20 to decorate her tree. Her granddaughter, Chelsey Schmidt (originally from Luverne, now in Brandon), and great-grandson Carter, 4, traveled with Stoel.

They were met by Stoel's brother and his wife and their great-grandson, all from Custer, and later they met with their other three Roghair brothers and their wives for lunch. "It was good to be together," Stoel said.

According to the Capitol website, among the most treasured pieces on display are a set of hand-painted porcelain ornaments from the state china painters' organization and a wooden nativity, believed to be nearly 125 years old, that the local Knights of Columbus sets up on the second floor. The trees are on display through the holiday season.

Avoid online fraud by following these safety tips

 $Better\,Business\,Bureau\,of\,Minnesota\,and\,North$ Dakota (BBB) suggests online holiday shoppers follow these simple steps to help ensure successful transactions and avoid becoming a victim of fraud:

 Protect your computer A computer should always have the most recent updates installed for spam filters, anti-virus and anti-spyware software and a secure firewall.

•Stick to trustworthy websites Check on the seller's reputation and record for customer satisfaction at bbb.org. Look for the BBB seal and other widely recognized "trust marks" on retailer websites. Always remember to click on the seals to confirm that they are valid.

•Protect your personal information Take the time to read the privacy policy of websites you visit and understand what personal information is being collected and how it will be used. If you don't see one posted, be aware your information may be sold to others without your permission.

•Beware of deals that sound too good to be true Offers on websites and in unsolicited emails can often sound too good to be true — especially ones offering extremely low prices. When visiting a website, look for misspellings and grammatical errors, as these are signs the site might be fraudulent. Trust your instincts. Don't be afraid to pass up "deals" that might cost you money instead of saving you money.

•Beware of phishing Legitimate businesses do not send emails claiming problems with an order or an account to lure the "buyer" into revealing financial information. If a consumer receives such an email, the BBB recommends picking up the phone and calling the retailer you dealt with or your credit card provider to confirm there really is a problem with the transaction. Always be extremely protective of your personal and financial information.

•Confirm your online purchase is secure Shoppers should always look in the address box for the "s" in https:// and in the lower-right corner for the "lock" symbol before paying.

•Pay with a credit card It's often best to use a credit card, because under federal law, the shopper can dispute the charge if he or she doesn't receive the item. Shoppers also have dispute rights if there are unauthorized charges on their credit card or merchandise they receive is damaged or defective.

•Keep documentation of your order After completing the online order process, there should be a final confirmation page or the shopper might receive confirmation by email. Save a copy of that as well as any emails for future reference and as a record of your purchase.

• Check your credit card statements often Don't wait for paper statements; the BBB recommends consumers check their credit card statements for suspicious activity by checking statements online regularly or by calling their credit card companies if fraud is suspected.

For more advice on staying safe online this holiday season, visit bbb.org/us/consumer-tips-holiday.

Magnolia Fire and Rescue receives equipment grant

By Mavis Fodness

The AgStar Fund for Rural America recently awarded $3,000 to Magnolia Fire and Rescue to purchase safety vests and EMS gear bags.

"There is a great need for emergency response support, especially in rural communities. Budget restraints make it difficult for departments to purchase and update critical equipment," said John Monson, chairman of the fund's board of trustees.

'This program allows us to support volunteer departments by making sure they have the equipment and the gear they need to effectively serve and protect their communities.'

Magnolia is one of 54 volunteer fire, rescue and ambulance squads who received Emergency Response Equipment grants this year. The grants totaled $151,820.

AgStar Financial Services, ACA, is headquartered in Mankato and is part of the national Farm Credit System. It serves 69 counties in Minnesota and

1911: State prohibits marriages between first cousins

The following appeared in the Rock County Herald on May 19, 1911:

After the first of next July first cousins cannot be united in marriage in the state of Minnesota, according to a law passed at the last session of the legislature, and for this reason there will be a considerable decrease in the number of marriage licenses issued in Rock county.

All the neighboring states have had such a law in force for years, and for this reason Luverne has been one of the favored places for people from those states who wished to evade the law, to come to Luverne to have the nuptial knot tied. Clerk of Court O. E. Ferguson estimates that this will result in decreasing the number of licenses issued by about one-eighth.

Strong start by LHS wrestlers spurs optimism

If the first two outings serve as any indication, Luverne Cardinal wrestling fans could be in for a fun ride this winter.

Second-year coach Tony Johnson and his squad kicked off the 2015-16 campaign by wrestling in two events in a threeday span late last week.

The results of both events captured my attention

LHS opened the season Thursday by hosting a Big South Conference triangular involving Worthington and Windom-Mountain Lake-Butterfield-Odin.

Under normal circumstances, I wouldn't celebrate the fact that the Cardinals split their matches during their debut.

I believe, however, it was the first time LHS defeated W-ML-B-O since

Never mind the fact that the 38-38 deadlock on the scoreboard at match's end was settled by the eighth piece of criteria (points scored in the first period by the wrestlers in both teams).

A win is a win in my book, especially considering the Cardinals have not come out on top of a Cobra squad in 17 seasons.

Luverne was even more impressive at the Flandreau Tournament on Saturday.

To the best of my knowledge, the Cardinals not only won the team championship for the first time in program history, they did so in commanding fashion.

With three LHS entries winning individual titles

From the IDELINES

By John Rittenhouse, sports editor and six Cardinals placing second in their respective weight classes, Luverne piled up 168 points to easily top second-place Garretson (142 points) and the rest of the six teams on hand for the event.

What makes Luverne's early-season success even more astounding is the fact that the Cardinals are competing as a shorthanded team.

LHS had to forfeit in three different weight classes against W-ML-B-O, but that didn't keep the Cards from four of the last five matches staged on the mat to help erase what was a 26-3 deficit early in the match.

LHS was three wrestlers short of fielding a complete team in Flandreau.

The Cardinals made up for that by having 10 of their 11 entries place third or better during the tournament.

It's doubtful LHS will ever field a complete team the rest of the season, but that shouldn't cast a shadow over the promising start to the season the Cardinal wrestlers experienced.

It might be a tall order for a short-handed squad to claim more team championships at tournaments the rest of the winter.

With a number of talented wrestlers in the stable, I have no doubt LHS will surpass its fourwin total posted one year ago.

When does Christmas begin?

Have you ever asked yourself the question, "When does Christmas begin?"

before or after Halloween? Does Christmas begin on Thanksgiving night at 6 p.m. with the "door buster" deals?

play Christmas items either

Does Christmas begin on Black Friday, or could Christmas begin with the turning of the calendar from Nov. 30 to Dec. 1?

Maybe the real Christmas begins 12/24 and continues through 12/25 or the beginning of the Advent season, which was Nov.29.

No matter what you think about Christmas and the way it gets pushed up earlier and earlier every year, Christmas comes into our lives. I found there are a couple of episodes in the Bible that move an early Christmas into a realm all by itself!

Maybe the first Christmas came with a scandal. It happened so long ago that none of us can even put a date to it. It took place in the book of Genesis and happened in the loveliest place of all ... the Garden of Eden. Ever since humankind defied God with disobedience and sin, God's plan is to reconcile humanity with God. God would need to become flesh somewhere in the big scheme of things. Christmas and reconciliation go hand in hand, and so would it be fair to say that Christmas had some beginnings in the Garden of Eden?

The prophet Isaiah had a hand in getting things ready for Christmas. Isaiah had no newspaper ads to begin his prophecy, no media to invoke sentimentality of Christmas, no hype of a community to bring things to a grand event, no strings attached in which he would need to pull marketing strategies from being in debt to bring it to a profit. But Isaiah had all the markings of the pre-Christmas ads ... he had the direct word of the Lord. "Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." (Isaiah 40:3) And do you know when Isaiah began making his pre-Christmas announcements? 700 years before it came to be!

It is my hope during this season of Christmas, when you begin to think about everything before you, you remember Christmas does not begin with Black Friday, the marathon movies on the Hallmark channel, the lefse, the pickled herring, lutefisk or oyster stew. It is not about an evergreen tree decorated with twinkling lights and glass bulbs, and it is not a particular date on the calendar. Christmas is all the time and forever!

Christmas is every day of our lives and comes to the climax of hope when Christ returns again and humankind will be fully reconciled with God and we live in the eternal kingdom. But for now ... WE WILL LIVE IN CHRIST-MAS!

May this Christmas be a turning point for you, when the realization becomes Christmas is every day and forever.
