Santa and Mrs. Claus make appearance in Hardwick

By Mavis Fodness

Picture perfect described Saturday's Santa Claus Day in Hardwick. Snow was falling outside the Hardwick Legion Hall as about 75 parents and children chose to escape the cold air nipping at their noses. Inside they made holiday ornaments and savored sugar cookies while they waited for Mr. and Mrs. Claus to arrive. The Hardwick Community Club-sponsored event kept up a decadesold tradition of ushering in the Christmas season with a few hours of fun.

For long time residents like Alice Hansen Mr. and Mrs. Claus (portrayed by Rodger and Dianne Ossenfort) were able to make a special visit to their homes.

They came bearing a brown paper bag containing peanuts in the shell, hard candy and red apple, treats Santa Day organizers used to hand out to everyone decades ago.

For Rodger Ossenfort Christmas 2016 marked his 30th year portraying jolly Ol' Saint Nick. Wife Dianne joined his side in 1991 and began appearing at Hardwick's Santa Claus Day.

Dressed in their red and white costumes, the Ossenforts garnered more smiles (and a few tears) when they arrived at the Legion Hall.

For an hour they graciously handed out candy and asked the children what they wanted Santa to bring them

LEDA takes stock of lots for sale; nine residential lots sold this year

Members of the Luverne Economic Development Authority reviewed lot sales during their meeting Monday morning, Dec. 12.

Luverne's Rich Dreckman, operating as RSD Development LLC, purchased a lot on Christensen Drive near the hospital for moderately priced townhomes.

A recent housing survey showed a need for more affordable housing of this type in Luverne.

In other commercial development business, a public hearing will be Jan. 9 to consider the sale of a lot in the Walnut Second Industrial Subdivision to Bob and Dawn Frakes, operating as B&D Leasing.

The couple will develop the property on South Walnut Avenue to expand the existing Fracko Inc.

At Monday's meeting the LEDA also reviewed the residential lot sale to Russell and Debra Hoogendoorn at 1110 Cherry Drive in the Sybesma Addition.

LEDA Director Holly Sammons said a total of nine residential lots were sold this year.

They include: •one in the Evergreen Addition to Brad and Emily Jones,

•one in Evergreen Second Addition to Jason and Mandy Brecher.

•six in the Sybesma Addition: Todd and Brenda Teal (two lots), Joel and Maggie Vandeburg (two lots), and Mike Gauthier and the Hoogendorns.

Through the years the city has developed lots - both residential and commercial — to encourage growth and development in the community. Depending on their size and location, residential lots range in price from $5,000 to $43,000. Commercial lots are priced more variably, based on the level of city involvement in their development. In the past five years, eight commercial lots and 15 residential lots were sold through the Luverne EDA. That's not counting those sold by the city.

for Christmas.

For volunteer photographer Mica Hemme of Hardwick the event signified that Christmas season has arrived.

Hemme has been the official Santa Claus Day photographer since 2010.

"It helps me get into the spirit of things more so than shopping," she said. "When I start taking pictures, I'm kind of in the moment and it makes me happy."

Except not all of those who posed with Mr. and Mrs. Claus were happy when a few tears were shed at meeting the Christmas couple for the first time.

"They are the best photos but I try to get a good one for the parents," she said.

Each family who has a photo taken receives the printed copy just before Christmas.

There are 55 lots remaining for sale, 41 residential and 14 commercial.

Demolition grants

At their Monday meeting LEDA members also approved a resolution extending the city's demolition grant program another four years.

Engesser's bank leadership put community interests first

By Mavis Fodness

Mike Engesser strived to achieve balance while he was president and CEO of First Farmers & Merchants National Bank, but that balance will shift for the 61-year-old when he retires Dec. 30.

Since announcing his retirement plans 11 months ago, Engesser has been busy preparing others to do his job at the downtown Luverne bank.

He also serves as senior vice president of 215 Holding Company, which encompasses 17 branch banks including Luverne.

"It's a hard job to retire," Engesser said last week. "You forget what all you do."

With 37 years of banking and insurance experience under his belt, Engesser filled numerous positions on his way to becoming the top local officer.

He started in the First Bank system as an insurance agent in Benson before he transferred to Luverne. He became a cashier two years later and began a 35-year career in Luverne.

Engesser said the degrees in business finance and accounting from Mankato State University were better suited for community banking than for insurance sales, so it was a move he never regretted.

However, entering the loan side of community banking in the 1980s was not ideal as the agricultural sector suffered financially during the farm crisis.

Engesser said those times were tough, but the experience left a lasting impression.

"We'd try to be able to make loans and help people," he said. "If you do it

As outdoor temperatures dipped below freezing last week, Luverne's second-graders began lessons to enjoy a summertime activity.

The two-week swimming curriculum has been a staple for elementary children in Luverne for more than three decades.

However, the parent support group is struggling to raise enough funds to keep the lessons affordable. Currently the lessons are free to students.

On Dec. 5, 74 second-graders started lessons; early next year 99 third-graders will take their turn in the pool.

Each day the students ride a bus to the indoor pool for the 45-minute afternoon lesson.

"For a lot of second- and thirdgraders it's their only lesson," said right, you minimize problems." The 1980s brought changes to how bankers looked at loans.

No longer was having adequate collateral for a loan enough for regulators but bank representatives needed to calculate positive cash flows for customers.

Engesser negotiated thousands of loan agreements during his banking career and has found communication to be the best tool instead of liquidating someone's assets.

"If you work with them, they will work with you," he said. "The result is a whole lot more positive."

First Bank Luverne became First Farmers & Merchants National Bank in 1987, and Engesser helped in the transition to the new owners. He became president and chief executive officer in 1998 and added the senior vice president title with the holding company in 2005.

Besides loan reviews and oversight of day-to-day banking practices, Engesser's logical thinking was a good fit in making the bank acquisitions and following state and federal banking regulations.

He said he used to have to remember the steps to eightorninebasic regulations, but now he couldn't count the number of checks and balances needed to conduct business today.

"The regulations make it hard to be a community bank," he said.

Engesser kept one idea in mind as he worked to find the best solutions for local customers. "If the community is successful, we're successful," he said.

In retirement Engesser will be able to add the hobbies and activities back into his days that his expanded bank-

- Esther Frakes, outgoing city council member in Blue Earth, Engesser admitted he wasn't the best student in high school.

For two years out of high school he worked various jobs to afford to go to college. One of those jobs as a night shift manager at the local grocery store helped hone his people skills, strengthen his work ethic and develop his active leadership approach.

That leadership style still showed itself decades later when he shoveled snow from the bank's sidewalks or changed a light bulb in the lobby, even though he held the top position at the bank.

Engesser's humble mindset has led to some peer recognition.

He received the 2012 Friend of Education award from the Luverne Education Association for supporting programs and activities in the district.

And, under his guidance, the bank is a four-time recipient of the Siefried and Brew honor for his success in balancing community needs with protecting depositors' assets.

Engesser said he and his wife, Jen, a teacher at Luverne Elementary School, would continue to live in Luverne after his retirement. The couple has two grown sons in the Twin Cities and North Carolina.

Work won't entirely leave Engesser's newschedule, as he becomes a consultant with the 215 Holding Company.

"I have had a wonderful fulfilling career," Engesser said, "in a place where people strive to make our area of the state a much better place to live and raise the next generation."

Local groups, individuals awarded for inspiring generosity

By Lori Sorenson

During its year-end ceremonythe Luverne Area Community Foundation handed out three additional awards to recognize people and organizations that have contributed to the community.

"Our purpose in sharing awards this year is to share philanthropic thinking in hopes of inspiring someone else to do the same in their own personal way," said LACF Director Emily Crabtree.

Gene and Barb Ashby received the Spirit of Philanthropy award for their generosity and for inspiring others to philanthropic action.

In 2006 Gene and Barb losttheir 16-year-old son Chris to a car accident. In the face of heartache Gene and Barb made a commitment to share a part of Chris' legacy with his graduating class of 2008.

Seventy of Chris' peers received a $500 scholarship on top of their qualifying Dollars for Scholars gift; a gift of $35,000 to 70 young people who will be forever impacted from their act of generosity.

The Ashbys also share a love of bike riding, and to provide opportunity for others to share in this love they started a Bike Path Development Fund at the foundation for future hard surface bike paths outside the city limits of Luverne.

The Ashbys have lived in Rock County most of their lives and have enjoyed the lifestyle it has offered. It is their hope that this gift and vision will continue to improve the quality of life for future Rock County residents.

Main Street Financial Services is this year's Outstanding Corporation or Business for the culture of philanthropy it has nurtured within its organization.

"The generosity of charitable gifts given by Main Street Financial team members is not something they do because they are asked but rather they do because they believe it is the right thing to do," Mike Cox said about his staff.

"This philosophy comes with a strong belief that God is an awesome God and we are blessed to be a blessing to others and required to care for each other."

Cox started the vision and

Some of the many gifts that are so willingly shared are five paid hours for volunteer work, monetary gifts in honor of team members to local charities chosen by the team member, adopting a family or facility during the holidays in lieu of personal gifts and $2 Friday donations to wear blue jeans to work, with quarterly proceeds gifted to local needs.

Atlas of Rock County is this year's Non-profit Spotlight Award recipient for its hands-on involvement, financial support and leadership for those in need.

Director Vicki Altena describes the work as "just doing life together" with one-on-one mentoring and support for individuals and elderly. This could mean help with transportation, moving, cleaning, grocery shopping, and doctor appointments among other things — all at no charge.

The pool charges half the normal price because Honerman feels strongly that every child needs to learn basic water rules.

"Our main goal is to make sure everyone feels safe in the water," she said. "Everyone should at least feel comfortable making it to a ledge."

Duringlast week's lessons, students were separated into three learning groups. Some students were overcoming fears of the water and learning basic swimming strokes while others were learning how to bob their way to the pool's edge. More advanced students were learning to float on their backs and dive safely into the water.

All the lessons are based on American Red Cross recommendations.

Payment for the lessons comes from the fundraising efforts of Parents Partners In Education (PPIE).

Small town living brings out good stuff this time of year

Sometimes it's important to really notice and appreciate the world around you. We all know that, but how often do we intentionally slow down or quiet down in order to really "take in" the good stuff?

I found myself doing that more this past weekend, and there's no doubt the Christmas season is the reason.

I guess it's easier to recognize and appreciate all the good stuff this time of year.

And there really is a lot of good stuff to notice in our little corner of the world.

Here are a few examples that I had the chance to take in last week.

Friday night I was among the several hundred people who packed the Luverne High School gym for the holiday choir concert.

It's safe to say that almost everyone in the gym that night truly enjoyed the traditional finale of the concert.

More than 230 students joined together (with batteryoperated candles in hand and all the gym lights turned off) to sing the most beautiful renditions of "O Holy Night" that I've ever heard.

Believe me, I took in the moment as I enjoyed the sounds and meaning of that song and considered how special it is to live in a community that still values and shares music and traditions like this with our kids. That's good stuff.

The next day I was fortunate enough to sing in the choir for the community Christmas cantata at the Palace Theater.

While that experience alone was great, there was a moment between the performances that made me stop and appreciate the little town I live in. A number of us were in the Luverne Area Foundation Office with the large windows looking out over Main Street.

As the snow fell, Main Street and the Palace marquee were all aglow as people entered our 101-year-old historic theater for the evening show. The beautiful Sterling's building across the street was filled with customers.

Luverne's beautiful, smalltown, snow-covered Main Street at Christmas time is definitely worth noticing.

The next morning I saw Cody and Nicole Henrichs walking to church while pulling their children on a sled across the newly fallen snow while Grace Lutheran's carillon played Christmas carols heard throughout the neighborhood.

I waved and thought to myself, "Is there anything more small-town Minnesota than that?"

When I take the time to really notice the world around me, I realize the world around me is full of good stuff.

I live in a beautiful, clean, safe community with a lot of people who value many of the same good things that I do and work hard to keep our community the way it is or make it even better.

I invite you to take the opportunity to really notice and

Anonymous donor match for History Center expires at year-end

Nearly 5 billion artifacts are held in public trust by more than 30,000 archives, historical societies, libraries, museums, scientific research collections and archaeological repositories in the United States.

This is an astounding reminder of the importance we place on preserving history in our communities.

But sadly, a third of these historical treasures will be lost over time due to lack of funding.

That's according to New York Times bestselling author Steve Berry, whose foundation, History Matters, supports historical preservation.

"Preservingour past establishes roots and community pride," he said. "It teaches, inspires, makes our communities more attractive and encourages travel and tourism."

If that sounds familiar. it's because we have the very same philosophy right here in Rock County.

Our Historical Society members and their fearless leader, Betty Mann, understand that things from our past are assets in a community, and saving them is smart.

What sets us apart from many other historical societies, fortunately, is that we have generous souls who have provided funds to support our history-saving efforts.

Betty knows all too well how much hard work and how much money it takes to properly organize and preserve history. That's why tears come to her eyes when she adds up the money that's come in to the History Center — a project she calls her "dream come true."

But even though the doors are open, the History Center isn't paid for, and funds will be needed for ongoing maintenance and operation of the facility.

"The work is never done," Betty sighed last week. "Because history goes on, you're never done."

We all have an opportunity to join in the final fundraising push for the History Center, and if we do it before the end of the year, our donations will be matched dollar for dollar by an anonymous donor.

State's DWI enforcement, rearview mirror stipulations make driving safer

Question: What are the legal ramifications if someone is arrested for DWI with a child in a vehicle?

Answer: If the child is less than 16 years of age and is greater than 36 months younger than the driver, the DWI violation would be enhanced to include Child Endangerment.

Question: Do I need to have a mirror on the outside passenger side of the door on my pickup truck? It has one on the driver's side and a rear view on the windshield.

Answer: Since your pickup has a mirror on the windshield and one on the driver's side, you are legal in Minnesota. According to the Minnesota Driver's Manual, all passenger vehicles must be equipped with rearview mirrors. Vehicles such as rental moving trucks, which are not designed to allow a view through the rear window, must be equipped with an additional side mirror. Pickup trucks, which are often used for hauling purposes, must also be equipped with an additional side mirror. The side mirror will provide the driver with a clear view when transported materials obstruct sight through the rearview mirror.

Vehicles equipped without mirrors or with limited mirrors can result in a crash as the driver is unable to see behind them from different angles. Driver and passenger side mirrors help drivers see other vehicles when changing lanes, assist the driver in determining how close other vehicles are, and in the event an emergency vehicle approaches, a driver is able to slow down and safely pull over and yield the right of way.

I recommend that drivers have two outside mirrors, along with a rearview mirror attached to their windshield at all times.

Operation Christmas Child sends gifts to children around the world

Volunteers in Luverne and surrounding cities have collected enough shoeboxes and financial donations to reach more than 11,000 children in need through the Samaritan's Purse project, Operation Christmas Child.

"Thank you to all who gave a box or donated money toward shipping," said local volunteer Karen Bosch.

This season's collection surpassed last year's gift donations to children in need worldwide.

For many of these children, the shoebox gift delivered through this local project will be the first gift they will have ever received.

Operation Christmas Child is a project of Samaritan's Purse, an international Christian relief and evangelism organization headed by Franklin Graham.

The mission of Operation Christmas Child is to demonstrate God's love in a tangible way to children in need around the world.

Local drop-off locations have closed for the season, but there is still time to pack a giftfilled shoebox online for children suffering from poverty, natural disaster, war, disease

Like online shopping, visitors can browse samaritanspurse.org/occ to select gifts matched to a child's specific age and gender, then finish by uploading a photo and writing a note of encouragement to be included in the shoebox they build online.

They can also follow their box to discover where in the world it will be delivered.

Participants can give a $25 gift card to a family member or friend so they can join in the excitement of Operation Christmas Child by packing a shoebox gift online.

These shoeboxes — filled with school supplies, toys, hygiene items and notes of encouragement-are delivered to children in some of the hardest-to-reach countries around the world.

Luverne's LEGO team heads to state

By Mavis Fodness

Luverne Public School's LEGO League team used professionalism to advance to the Minnesota FIRST LEGO League competition.

Calling themselves "Squid's Revenge," the six middle schoolers drew positive comments from the judges at the Dec. 3 regional event in Sioux Falls.

Adult advisers are Bill Thompson and Stacy Schepel.

"We did exceptional in the core values area and were awarded a trophy, which means that we displayed extraordinary enthusiasm and spirit," Schepel said.

"We also demonstrated 'gracious professionalism,' showing each other and other teams respect at all times."

Team members are Matthew McClure, Logan Ommen, Parker Carbonneau, JT Remme, Xavier Carbonneau and Henry Ramstorf.

The team competed in the three LEGO League elements: a challenge, a real-world project and the robotics game.

Each element is based on a single theme. This year's theme is Animal Allies. According to the league website, teams are challenged to think of people and animals as allies in a quest to make life better for everyone.

Sometimes people help animals and sometimes animals help people. The team mission is to make human interactions with animals

Luverne's project focused on a "Bee Drone" that sprays antibiotics on bees to prevent colony collapse disorder.

The state tournament takes place in late January. This is Luverne's second year offering LEGO League as an after-school activity. Students practice once a week from September through January.

Rock County 4-H Robotics team to compete Saturday for state trip

The Rock County 4-H Robotics team will compete in the state Qualifier B LEGO robotics competition Saturday at Memorial Middle School in Sioux Falls.

The contest will be from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Spectators are welcome to attend.

Team members include Brandon Berghorst, Zoey Berghorst, Evan Bumgardner, Ian Bumgard Cassie Chesley, Burke Johnson, Quentin Johnson and Zoe Perkins. All participants are in grades 4 to 7. Adult volunteer coaches are Randy Berghorst and Aaron Perkins. This is the program's sixth year. "It is a great way to expose youth to math and science and gives them a practical application to those concepts when they play the robot game," Berghorst said. "I think our group benefits mainly from being on a team and learning how to work with others." The robotic game is one of three First LEGO League competition components. In the game each team programs their robot for a mission to earn points. Each mission is assigned a number of points based on the difficulty of the task.

Teams earning the most points qualify for the state competition

The 4-H team practices Saturdays from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Rock County Extension Office.

KIDDIES TO SEE SANTA CLAUS HERE TOMORROW

Children from All sections of Rock county Invited to Attend Community Christmas Tree Party

CANDYAND FREEMOVIESHOW TO BE PROVIDED

Santa Claus Due To Arrive In Luverne at 1:40 Tomorrow Afternoon; Wants Kiddies To Greet Him.

Rock county kiddies from every village and every nook and corner are invited to assemble in Luverne tomorrow afternoon, December 19th, for the big community Christmas tree party arranged for by the business and professional people of the city.

Three thousand bags of candy, nuts and popcorn balls are now being prepared and will be distributed by Santa Claus at the Christmas tree beginning sharply at 2 p. m., to all boys and girls, 12 years old and under who assemble around the tree at the hour stated. It is planned that the supply shall be ample for all within the age limit. But to make this doubly sure, it is urged by the committee in charge that all older children wait until the kiddies for whom the party is especially prepared are provided with bags before trying to participate in the gift packages. This request, it is said, also applies to a lot of boys and girls of adult age, for in years past it has sometimes been quite difficult for the distributors to tell by the action of outstretched hands just how old the owners of the hands were. As a result, grownups carried off bags and bags. The free movie show is for children 12 years old and under, only, as the capacity of the theatre will not permit the admission of older childrenor adults and still give the younger children the chance to attend.

Santa Claus, according to his announced schedule, will arrive in Luverne over the Rock Island at 1:40 p. m., and all the children are invited to be at the station to meet him, and escort him to the Christmas tree.

The big community Christmas tree was erected last week at the intersection of Main and Cedar streets, and has since been prettily lighted with colored electric light bulbs.

The kiddies' party is being arranged for under the auspices of the Luverne Commercial club, with the following committee in charge of the affair: Mayor John Connell, E. L. Leicher, F. A. Leicher, Harper Shaffer, James Horne, D. W. Backer, Paul Myers, Wm. Mitchell and E. M. Hawes.

Apurse of $400 was raised by subscriptions circulated among the business and professional people of the city, to defray the expenses of the party.

Donations to the Rock County Historical Society can be sent to the Rock County Historical Society, P.O. Box 741, Luverne, MN 56156.

Gevo continues to expand markets for its isobutanol biofuel and recently secured a deal for on-road vehicles.

The company's distribution partner, Musket Corp., will ship isobutanol-blended gasoline to regional rest stop chain Buc-ee's for use in their Houston stores.

This marks the first time that Gevo's isobutanol, produced in Luverne, is specifically targeted toward on-road vehicles.

Previously, Gevo and its partners have focused on specialty markets such as marinas and off-road engines.

According to Gevo CEO Patrick Gruber, this announcement won't immediately affect production in Luverne.

"We are currently rangebound in terms of production levels by the current configuration of the plant," he said.

"The plant has four fermenters, and at present, one is used for isobutanol production, while the three others are used for ethanol production."

Under this configuration Gruber said by the end of 2016 the plant will likely have the capability to be at a production run rate equivalent to 1.5 million gallons per year.

He said this entry into larger markets will help underpin the ultimate switching of the entire plant over to isobutanol in the future.

"Having markets ready to take larger volumes of isobutanol, or its derivative hydrocarbons like jet fuel or isoocatane, makes timing and the financing of this conversion much more straightforward," Gruber said.

Buc-ee's, a 37-store regional chain of rest stops in Texas, is the first company to sell the 12.5-percent isobutanol blend, marketed as a high-performance ethanolfree gasoline. The on-road gasoline market represents a much larger market opportunity for isobutanol than specialty segments. Selling into the on-road market also counterbalances the seasonal nature of some of the specialty markets like marinas.

"Isobutanol-blended fuel is a new paradigm for biofuels because it combines high performance and sustainability," Gruber said.

"We've established this in the aviation and boating markets and are now bringing it to on-road transportation."

About Gevo

Gevo is a leading renewable technology, chemical products, and next generation biofuels company. Gevo produces isobutanol, ethanol and high-value animal feed at its fermentation plant in Luverne.

Adrian's Strand coaches All-Stars in U.S. Bank Stadium

The first Minnesota Football Showcase played at U.S. Bank Stadium

FROM THE SIDELINES

Dec. 3 included a local representative. Randy Strand, the veteran head coach of the Adrian Dragons, served as an assistant coach for the South All-Star Team. The South All-Stars came out on the winning end of a 15-7 decision over the North All-Stars.

Strand, who served as an assistant coach under Eden Prairie mentor Mike Grant, said it was a fiveday experience he will never forget.

"I had a great time. It was just an awesome experience," he said.

"This was the first time this game was played in December rather than in June of the following year. That means a lot of the Division 1 recruits got to play in the game. In past years either their colleges didn't want them to play in an all-star game or they were already getting ready to practice for their college teams. A lot of the players were bigger and faster athletes than I've ever seen before."

Strand didn't land a coaching position by accident.

Since this was the first time the game was played two weeks after the Prep Bowl, the event organizers wanted veteran coaches to be in charge of the teams.

Strand, who has 236 career wins and took his teams to the state championship four times, met the criteria for those reasons and another.

"I also was an assistant coach at the all-star game in 1999," he said.

"Back then, the game was played between the Metro and Outstate All-Stars. It was played at about an hour and a half early so we walked around to see the place. I also got some passes to bring my family members on the field 30 minutes after the game."

Ultimately, the all-star experience was a business trip for Strand.

He reported for duty as Grant's defensive backs coach on Nov. 29.

The South All-Stars participated in twice-a-day, two-hour practice sessions during the four days leading up to the contest and spent one evening after practice watching the Vikings-Cowboys game at a children's hospital.

"That was an eye-opening experience for the kids," Strand said.

"We served pizza to everyone there (patients, parents and employees) and spent some time with them. It was a pretty neat deal and it makes you realize how lucky you really are."

Luck, however, didn't have anything to do with Strand landing a position on Grant's coaching staff.

The AHS coach knows the game of football, and his defensive backs played a key role in the South's Showcase victory.

The South defense picked off three passes in the game and one of them turned an 8-7 edge into a 15-7 cushion when Edina's Brock Boltmann returned an interception 40 yards for a touchdown with 6:25 left to play.

"I can't take any credit for that. The credit goes to the kids," Strand said. 'In fact. I can't take credit for being there at all.

People give me credit for the success we've had at Adrian over the years, but

Dragons remain perfect with win at EHS

By John Rittenhouse

The Adrian boys' basketball team ran its record to 3-0 in Ellsworth Friday.

Taking on the Panthers in a Red Rock Conference contest, the visiting Dragons opened a 22-point lead in the first half and prevailed 72-51 at game's end.

The Dragons opened the game with a 9-0 run capped by a layup by Jacob Stamer 2:40 into the contest.

Ellsworth trimmed the difference to six points (9-3) when Grant Jansma buried a three-point shot at the 14:23 mark, but Adrian countered with a 17-7 run ending with a field goal from Tristian White at 7:54 to make it a 26-10 tally.

Adrian's lead swelled to 19 points (32-13) when Stamer drained a three at 6:27, but Ellsworth answered by going on a 9-2 run ending with a field goal from Noah Kruse with 2:16 remaining to make ita12-point(34-22) difference.

The Dragons regained control of the contest by putting together an 11-0 surge to open a 23-point (45-22) cushion when Mitchell Lonneman hit a field goal with 14 seconds remaining before settling with a 45-23 lead at the intermission.

Ellsworth's Nathan Wallenberg canned a 3-pointer 56 seconds into the second half to make it a 45-26 game before Adrian extended the lead to 23 points (49-26) when Ryan Wieneke converted a layup at 14:48.

An 8-0 spurt by the Panthers ending with Jared Leuthold sinking one free throw trimmed the difference to 15 points (49-34) at 12:44, but that proved to be as close as EHS would come to catching the Dragons.

Adrian extended its lead to 25 points (68-43) when Stamer buried a field goal with 5:41 left to play, and the Dragons never led by less than 17 points the rest of the night.

Mitchell Lonneman (19 points), Stamer (13 points, six rebounds and four assists), Nate Lonneman (12 points) and Zach Hendel (12 points) played solid games for Adrian. Ryan Wieneke and Frank Serrao charted four and three assists respectively for the winners.

Wallenberg tossed in 15 points for the 0-2 Panthers. Jared Leuthold (six rebounds) and Brandon Kramer (six rebounds and three steals) turned in productive nights for EHS.

Concert stirs memories of cookie prayers

The Luverne School Christmas Concert last Friday was remarkable for its beauty, elegance and meaning. The top two moments for me were the sixth-grade choir and the combined choir segments. I was sitting in the midst of many small children who were very well behaved but were getting restless toward the end. When the combined choir sang the last song, "O Holy Night," the hall went dark and the candles were lit. The kids in total silence gazed at the singers holding the candles and singing. The spirit of Christmas grabbed their hearts. Mine, too.

The highlight of the concert was the sixthgrade choir singing, "Sugar Cookies," a delightful piece about preparing and sharing frosted sugar cookies in the Christmas Cookie Jar. The singers reminded me how I used to pray Christmas cookies. Like this: the star cookie has five points for the five members of my family -Mom, Dad, three kids: Jim, Dave, Tom. As I ate each point in the cookie, I'd pray for God to bless each one in the Jennings family. With the Santa-shaped cookie, I'd start with his feet because I liked the Bible verse, "Blessed are the feet of one who brings Good News." I wanted to have Santa feet. And Santa hands to hold others in warmth and comfort. And Santa's heart to love. I'd pray about that as I ate the Santa cookie. For the Christmas tree cookie I'd start eating at the top where the star would be, praying to be light in darkness. I'd end at the trunk and root of the tree, praying that I'd be anchored and rooted in Jesus. When it came to Christmas bell cookies, I prayed that I'd bring beautiful sounds for the world to hear. That's how I did Christmas Cookie Prayers.

My adult world has lots of distractions and I'm very grateful that the sixthgrade choir last Friday night brought me back to a way of praying I learned as a child. I still like it.

There are many more Christmas concerts on the calendar. I'll be there as much as possible. I'll let the children and youth teach me the real meaning of Christmas.

Merry Christmas to all. I'll be praying for you as I eat Christmas cookies.
